DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE
This two story high commercial building is built of dark red brick laid in Flemish bond. With a single bay entrance on the corner, the building stretches six bays west on Baltimore Street, and four bays north on Eutaw. The bays are divided by one story brick pilasters which have capitals of pressed metal. Shop windows fill the bays in between; some are of the Chicago type, others are flat. At the center of the Baltimore Street side of the building a round arched entrance is surrounded with stone. A flat, double door of glass and aluminum fills the corner entrance. Second floor windows are large and segmental arched, and rest above a metal belt course. Each window is divided vertically in five parts, with double hung units of six-over-six lights in each with four light transoms above. The corner window is of three parts and is finished in the same way. Second floor windows have stone sills, brick lintels, and are fronted with iron rails. The brick parapet at the roofline is accentuated by projections which rise at points corresponding with the pilasters below, and which are crowned with stone caps.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Eutaw Building and the Hippodrome share the former site of ONE OF Baltimore's premier hotels from 1835 until its destruction by fire in 1912. The Eutaw building takes its unusual multi-store front from the hotel which it replaces, which had a ground floor configuration lined with small shops and offices. It is one of two such buildings in Baltimore; the other, less distinguished, building stands within the district at 20 N. Howard Street.
